Dear

I'm writing to you because I know you are interested in animal rights and the welfare of potbelly pigs in particular. As you know, pigs are intelligent creatures with a strong emotional life that makes them wonderful pets. But just like dogs, cats and other companion animals, potbelly pigs are vulnerable to abuse and sometimes need protection.

Safe Harboar Farm Sanctuary exists to provide a safe haven and lifetime care for abandoned, abused, neglected, homeless or otherwise endangered potbelly and farm pigs. We also attempt to find new homes for the adoptable ones. These animals come to us from all across Kentucky and the surrounding states.

At the moment we are sheltering 87 potbelly/mixed pigs and nine farm pigs. Every day, we learn of another animal in distress and try to make room for him or her. But due to space and financial limitations, we can't always do so. Lucy is one of the lucky ones:

Lucy's Story:

Lucy is a friendly sort who follows her owners around much like a dog would. Sadly, her owners sold their home and couldn't (or wouldn't) take her with them. If we hadn't agreed to take her in, they would have euthanized her.

She will now have a forever home here at Safe Harboar, where she can spend her days grazing, rooting and snoozing like the contended and valued creature she was meant to be.

We hate to say no when we receive an appeal for help. So we're appealing for your help. In order to continue with our rescue and sanctuary, we desperately need funding for food, veterinary care, and to build shelters so we can accept more companion pigs like Lucy.

Please contact me by email  or by phone (270)  * to find out how you can help. Or visit our website for more pictures and information: www.safeharboarfarm.org

Thank you from Lucy and all of us at Safe Harboar Farm,

Sincerely yours,

Tamara S.
